

Family Involvement

Share What You Are Learning with Your Child! Are you learning something new at home, at work or at school? Maybe you are learning a new recipe or how to fix your car. Tell your child what you are learning. Tell them how it makes you feel to learn something new and why it is important to you.

One of the most motivating factors for children is to see others in their lives learning new skills. When it's hard, tell your child it's hard and show them that even though it can be difficult, learning really is rewarding.
